

David Peck

David Peck is a distinguished director, project manager, and public engagement professional with extensive experience working with renowned brands such as Royal Bank of Canada, Bell Canada, UNICEF, The Plan Group, and Global Affairs Canada.

David has been producing a variety of shows, events, videos and campaigns for many years now as the founder and director of SoChange, a social enterprise that works with the corporate and NGO community in leadership development, innovation and entrepreneurship.

He holds a Masters degree in Philosophy from the University of Guelph and has completed postgraduate work in International Development and teaches in the business school at Humber College in Toronto. He is a writer, speaker, entertainer, academic and social change consultant.

David hosts a podcast called Face2Face on Rabble.ca, a professional magician and co-producer and creator of the award winning children's television show Spellz. He is a featured interviewer at Hot Docs and the Toronto International Film Festival and has published over 400 interviews.

David was named a Global Hero by Verge magazine in 2009 and recently published his first two books Irreconcilable Differences and Real Change is Incremental, which was nominated recently for a word guild culture award.

